

Goals:

- Provide training to our workforce partners and committed community members to become fully integrated to do the work of promoting healthy behaviors that will cause our communities to flourish.
- Collaborate with our partners to provide the training, resources, and personnel to establish learning opportunities and support for the members of our communities. Discover ways to establish “community” as we work, learn, and play in harmony.
- Establish teams of community members and workforce partners to be the “doers” of the work that empowers our people to become better informed of health and its effects on individual, family, and community. Create tools to empower our people to become a compassionate people that will cherish and respect aging and health among us.
- Partnered with Project ECHO: Care of Older Adults. We typically meet on the 3rd Friday, 12:00-1:30 pm Eastern Time (unless otherwise noted). Project ECHO sessions include an educational didactic, a case presentation, and discussion to address the needs.
- KCHC meets for community conversation to determine how the information can be shared. We share events and needs in our communities and discover ways that we can work together.
- As an integral part of the University of Louisville Trager Institute for Optimal Aging, KCHC believes that it takes communities coming together to care for the aging population. KCHC encourages community health and believes that health is contagious. We invite you to become a part of KCHC and learn the many programs and how you can join the work to empower our communities.
